Kroger Asks Customers to Check Freezers at Home for Select Ground Beef Products Recalled Due to Possible Health Risk

Kroger is recalling select store-brand and store-packaged ground beef products because the beef was supplied by JBS Swift Beef Co. and may be contaminated with E. coli O157:H7.

This recall affects Kroger customers in the following areas: Greater Cincinnati, including Dayton, northern Kentucky and southeastern Indiana; Greater Memphis, Tenn.; Arkansas, Mississippi; Indiana (except southwestern Indiana and Evansville); Illinois; and eastern Missouri.

Kroger asks customers to carefully check their freezers at home for certain store-brand and store-packaged ground beef with sell-by dates from April 27 to June 1, 2009. These products are in foam tray packages wrapped in clear cellophane.
